

GREAT READS FOR THE END OF THE YEAR

Reading is a great way to unwind and put the good stuff in, especially at the end of a stressful year. When you're looking for your next read, check out these books to help you stay motivated and productive.

“The Emigrant Edge”

by Brian Buffini — Get real estate legend Brian Buffini’s inspiring take on the power of an emigrant mindset.

Read this if: You’re ready to commit to a mindset that will inspire a personal and professional breakthrough in 2021.

“The 5 Second Rule: Transform Your Life, Work and Confidence with Everyday Courage”

by Mel Robbins — A simple strategy to help us avoid excuses and go for what we want in life.

Read this if: You’ve got your eyes on a particular goal, but you keep finding reasons why you shouldn’t start pursuing it.

“Tuesdays with Morrie”

by Mitch Albom — An inspiring tale of lessons the author learns from a professor who’s at the end of his life.

Read this if: You love to be inspired by authentic stories that can help you lead a better life in the new year.

“Joy at Work: Organizing Your Professional Life”

by Marie Kondo and Scott Sonenshein — Learn to organize your physical and digital workspace for maximum happiness and productivity.

Read this if: You want to give your office a makeover that can help you hone your focus and reach your goals.

“How to Win Friends and Influence People” by Dale Carnegie — Perfect for those who want to master the art of working with others.

Read this if: You’re looking to have more meaningful interactions with friends, colleagues and people you meet. A book that influenced billionaire Warren Buffet.

“What to Say When You Talk to Yourself” by Shad Helmstetter — Strategies to transform negative self-talk into words of power and optimism.

Read this if: You think you’ve been too hard on yourself in 2020, and would like to improve your happiness and productivity.

DECIDING YOUR NEXT READ?

These websites can help you find your next book based on interests and past reads.

Whatshouldireadnext.com

Goodreads.com

Oh by the way[®], thank you for allowing me to serve you and your friends and family this year! Wishing you a safe, wonderful holiday and a happy New Year!